

SEARCHING FOR AUSTRALIA'S HEALTHIEST SCHOOL

Aussie Apples is on the hunt for Australia's Healthiest School – could it be your local school?

In conjunction with Channel 9's Today Show, it's calling on budding Spielbergs to send in 60-second videos on why their school could be the nation's healthiest.

Up for grabs is a grand prize of $25,000 and the only criterion for the short film is that somewhere in the film, the entry must feature Aussie apples.

Apple & Pear Australia Chairman Darral Ashton said it's a wonderful way to highlight and applaud the fantastic healthy living initiatives taking place in Australian schools.

"From innovative sporting programs, to uniquely healthy canteen menus, to school vegetable markets – each year we have been amazed by the exciting activities school communities are embracing to help make their kids healthier," Darral said.

"This is a great way to honour the best and we hope it also inspires schools around the nation to be healthy and have fun doing it."

The competition runs July 19 to August 6 with the winner announced on the Today Show on Tuesday, August 17, with a live broadcast from the winning school!

For entry details just visit www.oneadaysuperfood.com.au or today.ninemsn.com.au

- Ends -

Issued on behalf of Horticulture Australia.

*For more information, please contact:
Andrea Brydges /Sonya Rogers at Bite Communications on Ph (02) 9969 6633*

